Wells Fargo Bank Renews Support, Donates $5,000 to Boulder Innovation Center
Relationship key to helping commercialize university technology

BOULDER, CO (February 16, 2011) – The Boulder Innovation Center today announced that Wells Fargo Bank has continued their financial support of the BIC, one of the nation’s premier entrepreneurial support organizations, with a $5,000 donation. Wells Fargo and the other sponsors of the Boulder Innovation Center value sustainable economic development and supporting the next generation of companies to emerge from Colorado’s university and entrepreneurial communities.

“Wells Fargo has been a long-term supporter of the Boulder Innovation Center,” said Tim Bour, Boulder Innovation Center Executive Director. “Our relationship exemplifies how a company can support economic development and enhance their business at the same time. We are very pleased to have Wells Fargo renew their support.”

Bill Farrell, Market President, Wells Fargo, commented that, “the Boulder Innovation Center helps out many worthwhile companies and technologies at crucial times in their growth. Wells Fargo is proud to support the Boulder Innovation Center and the tangible contribution they make to small business in Colorado.”

In the last four years, the Boulder Innovation Center’s referral process has yielded over 360 referrals to its sponsors.
